Time passes

And all that remains is reflection.

Reflections . . . images of things past and things present . . . a mirror for our thoughts. Some clear and indelible, others vague and indistinct; all, impressions on lives begun--a forecast of things yet to happen.

If these reflections hold true, they predict success, productivity, and wisdom.

Just as moments of triumph are crystalized, so are times of failure, to bear upon the future--a future of speculation, of reasoning, of retrospection.

A reflective examination of this year will recall morning announcements, crowded halls, registration, the prom, friends, pep rallies, cheerleaders, the trip to the airport, the Central ball game, the lunch lines, and Richard's field goal at Young.

The Bearden Echo is to cast these images, to replay in the minds of those who lived them, the phases of impression, of thought, of learning.

Reflections

Stealing light from the past

Shedding it on the future.

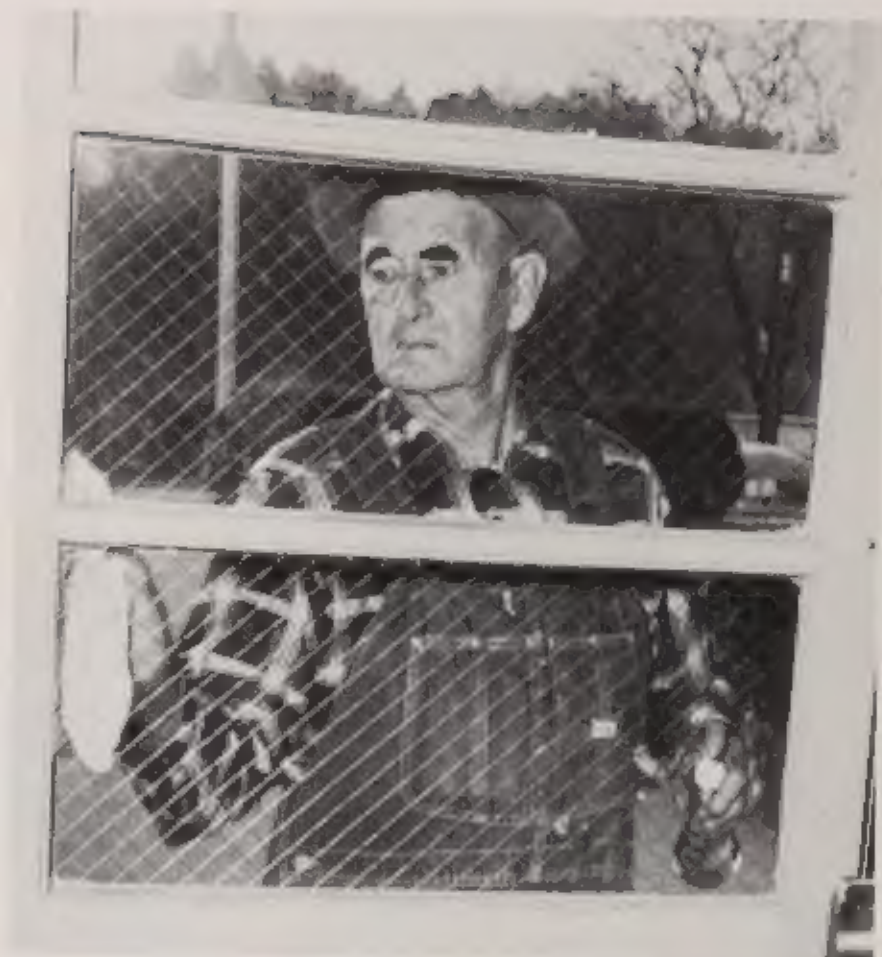

RANDY,
Take it easy and don't get into any trouble. Hope your band does OK. Lot of luck

The 1967 Echo editor wishes to thank Mrs. Marie Lowry, yearbook advisor, for her patience and understanding, Mr. Ron Wempe, American Yearbook representative, for his creative ideas and inspiration, and our photographers, Mr. Thomas Graham and Mr. Rhea Miller, for their cheerful natures, for their prompt attention to our many problems, and for their endurance during the workouts to which they were subjected
